This I Believe

I bake real loaves of real bread, using local, organic ingredients. No chemicals to interfere with the taste, texture, and healthfulness; no industrial machinery. Just flour, water, yeast, and salt, with just the right seasonings. My experienced hands shape every loaf.

No two loaves are exactly alike. I feel this is as it should be. I bake on different days, with different weather, using ingredients that I should hope vary from season to season and batch to batch. I find new ways to shape the bread and tweaks to the recipe to bring out more flavor and texture.
